DEC 3 0 1963 Approved For Release 2004/01/16: CIA-RDP75-00149R000500050002-3

18 47

ashington. The immutable fact that President Johnson cast the one, deciding vote for his running te in Atlantic City in August has done nothing the stop the furious speculation in Democratic stop the furious speculation in Democratic curcles as to who the second man on the ticket.

could and should be.

see The choice is considered crucial because John-tones from a part of the country that has they before sent a man to the White House.

respond to the country that has veriever before sent a man to the Whiter House. Wand it is considered essential that he find someone state halances his rather flamboyant Texas qualisates which are regarded as exotic in the North-large states.

The country of the political lexicon.

While President Johnson has been unequivectly and increasingly committed on the central issue of civil rights, he is still a dubious convention in July exactly what he will need the most in the way of a running mate. Meanwhile, Ashington is awash in possibilities and pro-mosers. The talk centers around five men: the The lask centers around tive men: the president's brother, Attorney General KenHe and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.

The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy's second choice in
He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy in He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was McCarthy in He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationship.
The President was All He and Johnson Hjoy a cordial relationshi

the presence of the Attorney General on the ticket and it is argued that he could not refuse to do for Johnson what Johnson did for his brother would lock up the Kennedy vote and insure the presence of the superlative Kennedy organization in the campaign.

Shriver's nomination would also summon the Kennedy forces.

Of them all, only Sen. McCarthy, a handsome, laxed 47-year-old intellectual, has received a blic endorsement. Rep. Celler (D.N. Y.), chair-in of the House Judiciary Committee, on television two weeks ago pronounced his former

1043

ונות

House colleague "the best Vice Presidential candidate, and the strongest."
"He is," said Celler "a scholarly gentleman, erudite and a real orator, who has carved out a remarkable career in the Senate." Like Robert Kennedy and Shriver, McCarthy is a Catholic, and this is considered an asset in the fact would have been one of sardonic amusement to the late President, who up until the montent of his election was told that his religion was an insuperable obstacle to the White House. Now, all is changed.

Sen. McCarthy is popular both among Catholics and liberals, who salute his independence. With President Kennedy, although on different grounds, he opposed federal aid for parochial schools. schools.

in yocally and increasingly committed on the central issue of civil rights, he is still a dubious elements in the church represented by Pope John Trish branches of the party who fought his nominated by Liberals remember gratefully his radio de land to the Vice Presidency in 1960.

Liberals remember gratefully his radio de with the Acoustic affect the Republicant of Wisconsth at the height of the forms what invactically to one in the Congress.

further when practically no one in the Congress would take him on.

His niciles point put that his wit, reflectiveness and designment would provide an effective ing Stavenson that was the oratorical high-water mark of the Democratic convention.

Since then, he has spoken in almost every state in the union.

One, local observer pointed out that Sen. McCarthy is an Irish Catholic without the built-in advantages of the breed, namely a big city base. His home is in St. Paul, not a political powerhouse.

But his partisans insist that if the matter were put up to the members of the House, who must run this year, and Senators up for reelection, he would be the first choice.

And if Lyndon Johnson turns to his old stamping ground, Congress, for a running mate, Sen. McCarthy might well be the man.